

- I'm Les Wilson, born and raised in Whitehorse and I have lived most of my life in the McIntyre subdivision. I have a wonderful wife and two grown kids going to college. I have spent most of my career working for KDFN in several key departments and in different capacities. I am very familiar with the KDFN Administration, Final Agreement, and the Self-Government Agreement and have a thorough knowledge of KDFN's land base
- I feel it is important to give back to the organization and community and I appreciate the opportunity to create a positive change for KDFN. I understand the importance of education and maintaining our traditional values. Kwanlin Dun First Nation has helped me achieve my goals and I would love the chance to help others achieve theirs.

My principles

Respect - We must respect each other and the natural world. Our actions, both individually and collectively, must reflect a respectful relationship with one another and our environment.

Cooperation - All of us, regardless of our different interests, must work together to build a better future for KDFN.

Community - We will be successful in addressing the challenges facing KDFN when we work together as a community rather than working alone as individuals.

Responsibility & Accountability - Both our community members and our government have a role to play in addressing our community's challenges. Each needs to be responsible and accountable for their actions.

Considering future generations

We must always take into consideration the impact of our decisions on the ability of our future generations to live successfully in this world.
